★ CUBA LIBRE £8.25

Around since the 1900s, the story goes that soldiers in Havana persuaded a barman to mix his precious Havana Club Añejo Especial rum with lime and a tasty new American soda. Today, we keep it simple. The same classic recipe but with Coca-Cola Zero.

DID YOU KNOW?

Amid Cuba's booming tourism trade, The Cuban Bartenders' Club was formed. Known to locals as the Club de Cantinero, it was the first national bartenders' guild anywhere in the world. Members would freely share expertise and knowledge, entering in competitions all over the world - and today, our very own Cantineros evoke the same spirit in every cocktail they make.

PAINKILLER £8.95

Pusser's Gunpowder Proof rum shaken with pineapple, orange, coconut and lime.

We top it with a Wray & Nephew Overproof rum-filled passion fruit, dust it with cinnamon sugar and, in true tiki fashion, set the whole thing on fire.

DID YOU KNOW?

During prohibition, Americans would fly all the way to Cuba in order to get their party fix, quenching their thirst with the island's rum and cocktails. In fact, Havana became such a party destination, that in the 1920s there were an estimated 7,000 bars in Havana!
